ON FORGED CERTIFICATES.

MORE OF W. I. PHILLIPS'S OPERATIONS. BOW HE OBTAINED $9,000 MORE-A QUESTION AS

TO RESPONSIBILITY. An additional number of members of the Produce Exchange became interested yesterday in the disseppearance of William I. Phillips, the flour merchant No. 19 South-st., who failed on Priday. Besides the $5,000 loan from the New-York Produce Exchange Bank, on a forged warehouse certificate, it was found that he had obtained $9,000 by forged yarehouse and margin certificates. This discovery change Bank, on a forged warehouse certificate, it was found that he had obtained $9,000 by forged warehouse and margin certificates. This discovery had an effect on the market, which was irregular—first up and then down—throughout the day.

The first forgery discovered in the margin certificates was by Ward & Foster, of No. 42 Pearl-st. They purchased from Philips 30,000 bushels of oats for June delivery, and each party put up the usual margin of five cents a bushel, or $1,500, to cover any loss that might occur before the contract was closed. After learning of the failure, Ward & Foster closed the contract and sent to Phillips on Saturday a bill for a claim of $850. They first learned of the disappearance of Phillips in The Tribune, on Sunday. As soon as the Fourth National Bank was opened vesterday they found that Phillips had withdrawn the deposits on three forged margin certificates. The name of "Ward & Foster" was so like the regular signature of Henry Ward that he said he could not have detected the forgery. Frown, Gill & Co., who have an office in the new Produce Exchange building, discovered that Phillips had drawn a deposit belonging to them amounting to $2,500 from the New-York Produce Exchange Bank. The deposit was withdrawn on five forged margin certificates of $500 each. Mr. Gill said that with the exception of the "II" the signature was good.

In connection with the margin certificates a questing the supplies of the signature was good.

with the exception of the "II" the signature was good.

In connection with the margin certificates a question as to financial responsibility has arisen, which the Board of Managers of the Exchange has referred to the Law Committee. According to the rules of the Exchange, before any original margin can be withdrawn, one of the parties must indose the certificate, and then the superintendent, or the assistant superintendent, is to order the bank to pay it. The Exchange receives no compensation for handing these margins, but its rules prescribe that the superintendent or assistant superintendent, "shall deposit and pay over such margins on contracts as members may be required to place in his hands by the rules regulating the respective trades of the Exchange, but the Exchange shall incur no pecuniary responsibility in respect to such margins." The notices sent to the banks with the margins to be deposited—except those sent to the Fourth National, which declined to accept of the condition, and those sent to the New-York Produce Exchange Bank—have printed upon their face "subject to the by-laws and rules of the New-York Produce Exchange." On the notices sent to the New-York Produce Exchange. And:

The fact that the margin certificates were indersed by the assistant superintendent and ordered us to pay the deposits to William I. Phillips relieves us of any responsibility or loss from lorgery. We accept the order upon the signature of the assistant superintendent, and it makes no difference to us whether Ward & Foster's significant superintendent.

re was forged or not. Cashier Sherman, of the New-York Produce Ex-change Bank, said it was an open question as to responsibility for the payment of these margins on responsibility for the payment of these margins on forged certificates.

Another swindle was perpetrated on the Bank of the Manhattan Company, at No. 41 Wall-st., to the extent of $5,000 by means of a forged warehouse certificate representing several hundred barrelouse certificate representing several hundred barrelouse. Tales bank has done business with Mr. Phillips and his father for the past forty years, and we always held him in the highest esteem. It is simply one of those cases where you think you know a man and don't. He obtained a loan from us of $5,000 on an original warehouse certificate, and this was carried by the sut situation of other certificates which now turn out to have been forged.

THE "FRENCH MADAME" CONVICTED.

Mrs. Eliza Parret, known as the "French Madame," was convicted of violating the excise laws yesterday in the 3Court of General Sessions. Witnesses had sworn that they bought liquor at No. 64 West Thirty-first-st, and that the waiters paid the money to Mrs. Parret. Ex-Assistant District-Attorery O'Byrne in opening the case for the defence said that he would show that the place was not owned by Mrs. Parret. John Loertchner testified that he had been a waiter in the employment of Mrs. Parret at $20 a week, but that in September he bought the place for $6,000 and still owned it. Gottfried Andsish, a waiter, corroborated these statements. George Dumain, also a waiter, said that he was at the house in Thirty-first-st, all the evening of January 24 and did not remember having seen any of the witnesses for the prosecution there on that night. "Who is your employer? asked Assistant District-Attorney Fellows on cross-examination. THE "FRENCH MADAME" CONVICTED.

the jury that it was necessary for them to decide whether Mrs. Parret was the proprietor of the place before coming to a decision as to her guilt. The jury, after a short absence, returned with a verdict of guilty, and Mrs. Parret was remanded until today for sentence. The usual sentence for such offences is a fine or imprisonment for thirty days or saxty days.

CARING FOR THE CITY'S REVENUE.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners yesterday au-berized the Controller to pay $389,000 of the 7 er cent city bonds and transfer $400,000 from the The Sinking Final Commissioners, selected, as therized the Controller to pay $389,000 of the 7 per cent city bonds and transfer $400,000 from the surplus revenues of the interest of the Sinking Fund to the sinking Fund for the redemption of the city debt. The premises adjoining the Fulton Ferry and part of the slip were rented to the Fishmonaers' Association for twenty-one years at an annual rental of $12,000. Controller Grant said that the Aldermen had authorized the catablishment of ferries from West Fourteenth-si, to Hoboken; from East Twenty-third-st, to Hoboken; from East Twenty-third-st, to Hoboken; from a point between Piers 2 and 3, East River, to towanus, Brookiva. Alderman Grant said that the resolution establishing the last-named ferry was passed over the Mayor's veto without having been referred back to the proper committee. The question was referred to the Corporation Counsel for an opinion. A letter was received from the Fire Commissioners asking that certain plots of ground belonging to the city, in East Sixty-seventh and Sixth-eighth six, be granted to the department for an engine bonse site. The Board also wished to establish a training school there. The Controller was requested to report on the protest. Board also wished to establish a fraining school there. The Controller was requested to report on the matter. The sale of the leases of the Bay Ridge and Staten Island ferries, running from Whiteball-st., was ordered to be postponed for thirty days.

A resolution was adopted protesting against the bill now before the State Senate imposing on the Enking Fund Commissioners the daty of making contracts for street cleaning.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS.

RUGG SENTENCED TO BE HANGED.

It was just twelve minutes after ten o'clock yesday morning when Judge Brown opened the Court in Long Island City. Long before that time, however, the avenues leading to the Court House were thronged with people, and the court-room and galleries were densely crowded. All were cager to see the murderer kugg, who was to be sentenced to death. He occupied a seat at the table with his counsel, Messrs, Quaries and Shields, and was closely guarded by Deputy Sheriffs Carpenter and Meyers, while Sheriff Furman and Under Sheriff Warnock stoed in the alsle directly in the rear. There was no perceptible change in the prisoner, and he seemed apparently the most disinterested man in the Court-room. Several of the young women who called at the jail on the previous day to see him were present. Rugg recognized them and bowed to thom. They returned the marderer's greeting with smiles. There were no colored people in the Court-room. District-Atiorney Heming rose and moved for the sentence of Charles H. Rugg.

Judge Brown ordered Rugg to stand up. He stood erect and motionless, his eyes fixed intently on the Judge.

Judge Brown—Rugg, what have you to say why sentence of the Court should not be pronounced upon you? RUGG SENTENCED TO BE HANGED.

MARY ANDERSON'S HORSES SOLD.

The Jerseymen took possession of the grounds of the handsome cottage of Miss Mary Anderson, at Long Branch, yesterday morning, and tried to outshoot each other in bidding for a number of articles offered for sale to the highest bidder. John E. Lanning, Town Counsel of Long Branch, was the first one to secure what the auctioneer called "a gilt edge prize." He paid twenty-five cents for a noe and shovel. A scythe was sold for the same price, a long hadder for $1 10 and a water cart for $1 50. A beautiful little dark-brown pony was sold for $100. A large bay horse called "Dun" brought $170. After a spirited contest between some of the bidders "Beile Patchen," a handsome mare highly prized by Miss Anderson, was sold for $250, although she was of good stock and extremely "speedy." "Cho Denmark" was then brought out. This animal is the one used by Miss Anderson as her saddle horse at Long Branch during the summer of 1882. She paid $450 for the horse that spring. It was finally knocked down for $190 to Joseph Priestly. The next horse sold was the blind bay mare "Maggie Logan." which was purchased by Miss Anderson the year she purchased her Long Branch cottage, and cost her $1,200. The mare took twenty prizes at fairs in the State of Kentucky as a ladies' saddle horse. "Maggie" was always a great favorite of the pepular actress and she rode her daily for several years. The bidding for the mare was not at all rapid and she was finally knocked down for the insignificant sum of $105. A number of other articles were sold, the aggregate amount realized being about $1,300.

Foliceman Wood early yesterday heard cries for help coming from the house. He harried there and found Thomas Wilson, a negro, lying on the ground, bleeding from a wound in the throat. In the house the Goff sisters were screaming for assistance. Jennie told the officer that she was aroused from her sleep by the negro breaking into the house. She got up and met Wilson coming up the stairs. He seized her but she made a desperate resistance. The screams of the girls frightened the ruffian and he jumped out of a second story window. In falling he struck on a sharp tin and cat his throat. The wound was sewed up by Dr. Hervey, after which the prisoner was taken before Justice Halle, who committed him to await the action of the Grend Jury. Wilson, who is about twenty-two years old, has lived in Rossville ail his life. Heretofore he has not been known to commit any crime.

Julius Columbani, the Italian, who was arrested in New-York for stealing Richmond County bonds, was arraigned before Justice Franklin C. Vitt, at Stapicton, Staten Island, yesterday, on a charge of grand larceny. He was represented by counsel, and George Gallagher, District-Artorney of Richmond County, appeared for the prosecution. Owen and Edward McSoriey, from whose house the bends were stolen, were present and identified the securities as their property. Columbani was held to await the action of the Grand Jury, which will meet on Monday. The prisoner seemed indifferent about the proceedings, and expressed a positive beinef that the authorities would not be able to connect him with the robbery of the bonds, but only with offering them for sale. Columbani was removed from the Stapleton lock-up to the jail at Richmand.
